Detective Fortier was assigned investigative duties within the Volusia Sheriff's Office Domestic Security Unit (DSU). On July 6, 2026, at approximately 1530 hours, Detective Fortier became aware of a concerning Facebook Live video posted by [REDACTED] while at the DeLand Courthouse.

Detective Fortier had previously been provided the Facebook account name "[REDACTED]" after [REDACTED] was contacted in Daytona Beach on July 3, 2026, during an unrelated incident. During that encounter, [REDACTED] was operating a silver vehicle bearing North Carolina license plate [REDACTED].

Detective Fortier reviewed a Facebook Live video depicting a Black male wearing a green pullover hoodie, glasses, and smoking a cigarette while standing outside the DeLand Courthouse. During the video, the individual commented on the size of the courthouse and stated that the rain was cleansing his spirit. The individual complained that someone was sending him on a "wild goose chase" and stated he would get to the bottom of it because he was "that king." He further stated that wherever he placed his feet belonged to him and claimed the courthouse belonged to him. During the live video, the individual stated that if anyone turned him away or failed to help him, they were "gonna die you better check the last live." He then stated, "that's real."

Detective Fortier reviewed another Facebook Live video depicting the same individual driving a vehicle while waving an AR-style firearm with a magazine inserted. During the video, the individual displayed a second magazine loaded with ammunition. The individual stated:

"The king is back they are going to bow the fuck down or they are going to die. I want everything I ask for. Niggas are going to die rapidly, god has been taken y'all little by little, but nah fuck that, y'all about to start dying rapidly on my land."

The individual further stated:

"Why is it raining as soon as I said it y'all gonna die quick until I get what is delivered to me that's my house that's everything I ask for I am that king."

Detective Fortier reviewed an additional Facebook Live video in which the individual stated he did not know "what that stupid bitch thought." He stated he had printed approximately 50 documents but had been told they needed to be certified for a cost, which he refused to pay. He further stated that he only wanted the "names and owners of his shit so he could pray on them." The individual also discussed a website that allegedly allowed people to enter their names to determine what property belonged to them, claiming that if a street contained a person's name, that person owned the street.

Detective Fortier also reviewed a written Facebook post containing a photograph of "The closing agent Title Insurance Company." In the post, the individual stated the company had hung up on him when he called. He stated he would give them 10 minutes to return his call and, if they failed to do so, he was "going to walk him down." He further stated they had 10 minutes and that he would be "coming in like a fireball." The individual concluded the post by stating he came in peace but warned, "don't disrespect the king, not on my land."

Detective Fortier reviewed another Facebook Live video in which the individual stated he was going to [REDACTED] Street and instructed people to get off his "shit" or "God is going to start taking people out of their family." During the video, he repeatedly stated that people would lose family members unless they contacted him and advised he would provide them with his phone number so they could call him.

Detective Fortier reviewed another Facebook Live video depicting the individual inside a Wawa convenience store with two Starbucks drinks concealed in the front of his pants and a bag of Cheez-It crackers. The individual stated he had stolen the items because he was not going to pay for anything located on his land. He further stated that God kept the cash register employees distracted while he took the items and questioned why others believed God would not help them obtain whatever they wanted on their own land. During the video, the individual repeatedly stated, "I'm that king."

Detective Fortier reviewed a second video depicting the individual at another Wawa convenience store. During the video, the individual again admitted stealing merchandise from the store and stated he would not pay for anything because he was God's favorite. He again stated he was going to [REDACTED] Avenue to tell people to get off his "shit" or members of their families would begin dying. The individual stated he was not going to use his firearm or rob anyone but intended to tell residents that if they remained on the property they were going to die. He also stated he would not be homeless much longer.

Throughout several Facebook Live videos, the individual repeatedly stated he was on his way to _____ Avenue and demanded that people "give him his land back." He stated he intended to go door-to-door and declared that if "these motherfuckers don't get the fuck out that shit guess what, they cause everything it is going to fall apart." He again identified himself as God's favorite. The individual stated he was writing a paragraph that he intended to recite to every resident. Portions of the statement included that he was acting on behalf of his father to reclaim his inheritance, that God wanted his land returned, and that if residents failed to vacate within the next 24 hours they would begin losing family members, vehicles, and everything they owned.

Detective Fortier also observed several Facebook posts in which the individual stated that if he test drove a vehicle, the owner would not get it back. He subsequently made two posts labeled "Victim 1" and "Victim 2," each displaying photographs of vehicles. The individual also stated he intended to continue stealing from stores.

Detective Fortier determined that the individual depicted in the Facebook Live videos was _____. Deputies subsequently made contact with _____ confirming him to be the individual who produced and appeared in the videos.

Based upon the foregoing information, Detective Fortier issued a request to locate _____ and the silver vehicle in which he had been observed during the previous encounter. Volusia Sheriff's Office deputies subsequently located _____. It should be noted that while being placed under arrest, _____ was live streaming the arrest on the same Facebook account from which the threatening videos had been posted. A black Del-Ton Inc firearm, two magazines, and forty rounds of ammunition were recovered from the vehicle during the arrest.
